Graham, Kerr and Lewis Return Top Scores—Bad Hole for White.

The dubs were not the only ones who suffered the extreme penalty. There was Cardner White's 10 on the fourth hole in the afternoon. Frank Dyer, who is playing fine golf, had an 8 on the 405-yard sixth. Reggie Lowis needed 8 strokes on the fourth, and Ham Kert.

Books Boston and Brooklyn Should Read "A Tale of Two Cities." "The Battle of the Strong."

The Red Sox, with Speaker and Barry on deck, only heat the Tigera by a board three-game margin last year. This season, with Speaker gone and Burry jured, they are upon the verge of extending this margin a game or two. We'd like to see how far they could widen the gap by losing Babe Ruth, Ernie Shore and Larry Gardner. The odds are they'd dismantle the league by July.

Not Precisely the Same.

The National League so far has shown no such club. Brooklyn, with a chance to sew up the race, blew five games in a row to the Phillies.

The Phillies, with a flag flapping almost directly above their noble brows, then proceeded to blow four straight to the Giants. Neither club was able to wage any such war as the Red Sox waged when it came to the final push.
